Market Review

While local inflation continued to moderate in February at 3% from January's 3.2%, inflation expectations moving forward will most likely be elevated due to higher global oil prices because of the Russia – Ukraine conflict. In addition to the global geo-political concerns, the local bond market reacted to the large supply stemming from the newly issued 5 year Retail Treasury Bond (RTB), causing an average 60bps uptick in bond yields for the month of February. Investors are currently digesting the additional supply of PHP457.8Bn of the new RTB and should keep investor sentiment cautious in the coming weeks.

Outlook

Notwithstanding the current elevated inflation environment, we expect the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) to keep an accommodative policy stance for the first half of 2022 to support the Philippine's economic recovery. We expect the Philippine economic engine to ramp up this year, with GDP averaging at least 7% as the country's vaccine inoculation continue to improve. We will continue to monitor local developments on the supply risk and inflation in addition to the developments on the Russia and Ukraine war. Against this backdrop, we will keep a neutral duration positioning for the local fixed income portfolios and opportunistically increase our position on select securities.

The Fund mentioned in this document is specific to variable life insurance contracts and is not considered a mutual fund.
