Market Review

In December, the Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEi) fell by 1.04%, bringing the year-to-date return to 4.1%. By the end of 2024, the PSEi closed at 6,528.79. This weakness can be attributed to several concerns, including aggressive U.S. policies and a potentially less optimistic outlook for rate cuts. Additional pressures included a 1.4% depreciation of the peso in December, bringing the full-year depreciation to 4.24%, and a rise in U.S. 10-year Treasury yields to as high as 4.8%, up from 3.6% in September. Investor repositioning ahead of 2025, influenced by changing interest rate expectations, also led to underperformance in interest rate-sensitive sectors like property and financials.

In December, inflation increased to 2.9% year-on-year, up from 2.5% in November. Food prices rose by 3.4% year-on-year, while housing and utilities increased by 2.9%. Notably, rice prices continued to decrease in the latter part of 2024, likely due to lower international rice prices. This decline followed an average increase of 23% from the start of 2024 to the end of the first half. On the monetary policy front, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas continued to cut policy rates by another 25 basis points to 5.75% on December 19.

Governor Remolona stated that he expects further rate cuts in 2025, potentially as early as the first quarter.

Outlook

We expect the market to trade sideways to lower in the first quarter of 2025 due to a lack of catalysts. Key developments to watch include consumer spending trends and the impact of upcoming local mid-term elections, which may support weak market sentiment. Currently, the PSEi is trading at a P/E ratio of around 10x, presenting potential buying opportunities at lower levels.

The Fund mentioned in this document is specific to variable life insurance contracts and is not considered a mutual fund. Yields depend on interest and foreign exchange rate levels, both of which may fluctuate. Other factors that affect yield include changes in the credit standing of the issuers and changes in the value of the stocks and dividends received. Further, investments of the Fund may provide that their values be determined based on prices or yields of other securities, instruments or foreign currencies, and such provisions may result in negative fluctuations in the value of these investments and, in turn, the Fund's yields. Thus, the performance of the separate account(s) is not guaranteed and the value of the policy could be less than the capital invested. THE VARIABLE LIFE POLICYHOLDER SHALL BEAR ALL INVESTMENT RISKS. Past performance of the Fund is not necessarily indicative of future performance. Yields are not guaranteed.
