Market Review

In December, the Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEi) rose by 0.83% to 6,052.92, bringing the year-to-date decline to -4.14%. The market continues to hover near the 6,000 level after bottoming out at 5,584.35, as investors await significant catalysts. Nevertheless, concerns over slower GDP growth may continue to limit market upside potential and temper investor risk appetite for risk assets.

In December, CPI rose to 1.8% from 1.5% in November, coming in higher than expectations and landing at the top end of the BSP's 1.2–1.8% forecast range. Core inflation eased slightly to 2.3% from 2.4%. On a month-on-month basis, CPI increased 0.7%, mainly driven by food prices, reflecting disruptions from recent typhoons that led to an uptick in the prices of vegetables, fish, and meat. Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Governor Eli Remolona described the December CPI figure as a “reasonably low rate,” even as it quickened from 1.5% to 1.8%.

Outlook

Foreign investors continue to exert downward pressure on stock prices, with only 9 out of the 30 PSE index components ending 2025 with a positive return. Nevertheless, despite the market's 8.82% rebound from its November 14 low, we do not expect prices to rise meaningfully above the 6,000 level as investors remain concerned about the fragile domestic growth outlook. Lingering worries over slower consumer demand and the significant drop in public works spending observed in the third quarter of 2025—and its implications for government disbursements in 2026—may cap further near-term market gains.

From a portfolio perspective for 2026, a low policy rate environment coupled with a tentative growth outlook makes defensive sectors such as utilities and REITs attractive, despite their strong performance in 2025. We will continue to wait for clear positive macro catalysts—both from corporate earnings and GDP—before considering reallocating back into cyclical sectors such as banks, property, and consumer discretionary.

The investment fund option for The Manufacturers Life Insurance Company's variable life insurance product is managed by Manulife Investment Management and Trust Corporation.

The Fund mentioned in this document is specific to variable life insurance contracts and is not considered a mutual fund. Yields depend on interest and foreign exchange rate levels, both of which may fluctuate. Other factors that affect yield include changes in the credit standing of the issuers and changes in the value of the stocks and dividends received. Further, investments of the Fund may provide that their values be determined based on prices or yields of other securities, instruments or foreign currencies, and such provisions may result in negative fluctuations in the value of these investments and, in turn, the Fund's yields. Thus, the performance of the separate account(s) is not guaranteed and the value of the policy could be less than the capital invested. THE VARIABLE LIFE POLICYHOLDER SHALL BEAR ALL INVESTMENT RISKS. Past performance of the Fund is not necessarily indicative of future performance. Yields are not guaranteed.
