Market Review

The Philippine Stock Exchange Index experienced a marginal decline in June, closing at 6,411.91 points. The 0.11% month-over-month decline places the PSEi's year-to-date return at 1.21%. It is important to note that due to the local currency's 5.5% year-to-date depreciation, the benchmark's US dollar return remains negative at 4.09%. Despite valuations reaching multi-year lows, the market continues to be overshadowed by concerns about higher interest rates and inflation.

In June, Philippine inflation slowed from May's 3.9% to 3.7% year-over-year. The drop was driven by a decline in fuel and utilities for the period, offsetting food inflation which showed a slight acceleration in the period. The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas forecasts that full-year average inflation will fall within its target range of 2% to 4% for 2024.

Meanwhile, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. signed Executive Order 62, reducing import duties on rice from 35% to 15%, effective in July. This measure is expected to bring headline inflation closer to 2%, reinforcing market expectations that the BSP will begin to reduce rates from the current 6.5%. While the BSP kept rates unchanged in its June 27 policy meeting, it reiterated a less hawkish stance. The BSP's monetary board is set to convene next on August 15.

Outlook

Based on macroeconomic developments, we maintain a positive outlook for the market. Inflation is expected to comfortably settle within the BSP's target range for this year. Anticipated rate cuts in the third quarter are likely to fuel a re-rating by the market.

The Fund mentioned in this document is specific to variable life insurance contracts and is not considered a mutual fund. Yields depend on interest and foreign exchange rate levels, both of which may fluctuate.
