Peso Growth Fund

Market Review

The PSEi declined by 8.81% in March to 5,948 amid the escalating Middle East crisis. Market performance was driven by several key factors, including the intensifying Iran conflict, a surge in Brent crude prices toward USD 120 per barrel following the closure of the Strait of Hormuz, and a subsequent market selloff after shifts in the BSP's hawkish tone and monetary policy outlook. These geopolitical and economic developments continued to dampen investor sentiment. Meanwhile, the peso weakened to as low as 60.745, pressured by sustained foreign equities market outflows amid heightened external uncertainty.

Philippine headline inflation rose to 4.1% year-on-year in March 2026 from 2.4% in February, exceeding market expectations and marking a near 20-month high. The increase was mainly driven by higher transport costs due to elevated global oil prices, as well as faster food inflation led by rising rice prices. Core inflation also increased to 3.2%, indicating broader price pressures beyond food and energy.

In an off-cycle meeting, the BSP noted the impact of supply-side shocks on economic growth and stated that inflation could exceed its 2–4% target range in 2026. BSP also identified potential second-round effects from higher oil prices, including increases in transport fares, food and fertilizer costs, electricity rates, wages, tariffs, and the possible suspension of fuel excise taxes. The current March Inflation figure has moved above BSP's target range ahead of the April policy meeting, with the recent increase largely driven by supply-side factors.

Outlook

Local market conditions are expected to remain volatile amid ongoing geopolitical tensions, particularly in the Gulf region, which continue to pose risks to global oil supply. The sharp rise in local diesel and gasoline prices may sustain inflationary pressures following the March inflation print and add uncertainty to the domestic growth and inflation outlook. Against this backdrop, the BSP has shifted to a more hawkish monetary stance, potentially signaling an end rate cut expectations, which has led markets to increasingly anticipate the risk of policy rate hikes for 2026. Portfolio positioning remains defensive, with a focus on dividend-paying stocks and elevated cash levels to help cushion the portfolio against market volatility.

The investment fund option for The Manufacturers Life Insurance Company's variable life insurance product is managed by Manulife Investment Management and Trust Corporation.

The Fund mentioned in this document is specific to variable life insurance contracts and is not considered a mutual fund. Yields depend on interest and foreign exchange rate levels, both of which may fluctuate. Other factors that affect yield include changes in the credit standing of the issuers and changes in the value of the stocks and dividends received. Further, investments of the Fund may provide that their values be determined based on prices or yields of other securities, instruments or foreign currencies, and such provisions may result in negative fluctuations in the value of these investments and, in turn, the Fund's yields. Thus, the performance of the separate account(s) is not guaranteed and the value of the policy could be less than the capital invested. THE VARIABLE LIFE POLICYHOLDER SHALL BEAR ALL INVESTMENT RISKS. Past performance of the Fund is not necessarily indicative of future performance. Yields are not guaranteed.
