Market Review

The US stock market rose in January, buoyed by strong earnings reports from many companies, solid economic growth, and expectations for deregulation under the new administration. These tailwinds outweighed concern around potential new import tariffs, news that China-based DeepSeek had developed a competitive artificial intelligence (AI) model that could be trained at a much lower cost than other AI offerings, and the US Federal Reserve (Fed)'s decision to pause interest rate cuts. Within the broad-based Standard & Poor's (S&P) 500 Index, the communication services and healthcare sectors stood out, while the information technology (IT) sector lagged. Among large-cap stocks, value performed well.

Outlook

We remain cautiously optimistic about prospects for US stocks, given expectations for corporate earnings growth, low unemployment, economic strength and consumer spending. Deregulation, increased capital markets activity and AI could provide added tailwinds. However, new administration policies, including any relating to higher import tariffs, could spur increases in inflation and market volatility.

The Fund mentioned in this document is specific to variable life insurance contracts and is not considered a mutual fund. Yields depend on interest and foreign exchange rate levels, both of which may fluctuate. Other factors that affect yield include changes in the credit standing of the issuers and changes in the value of the stocks and dividends received. Further, investments of the Fund may provide that their values be determined based on prices or yields of other securities, instruments or foreign currencies, and such provisions may result in negative fluctuations in the value of these investments and, in turn, the Fund's yields. Thus, the performance of the separate account(s) is not guaranteed and the value of the policy could be less than the capital invested. THE VARIABLE LIFE POLICYHOLDER SHALL BEAR ALL INVESTMENT RISKS. Past performance of the Fund is not necessarily indicative of future performance. Yields are not guaranteed.
