Market Review

The world equity markets posted gains in October, building on their strong returns in the first nine months of the year. Stocks were boosted by a favorable investment backdrop highlighted by positive global growth, modest inflation, and upbeat corporate earnings reports. Monetary policy easing also played a role in the rally, with major central banks continuing to cut interest rates. Most notably, the US Federal Reserve lowered rates by a quarter point in October, the second consecutive meeting at which it has done so.

The US market was a top performer for the month, behind persistent strength in technology stocks and companies seen as beneficiaries of artificial intelligence (AI). Developed Asia and Europe also posted gains, with a slight edge for the former thanks to an ongoing rally in Japan. The geographical region's market was boosted by the combination of corporate governance reforms, a pro-growth shift in government policy, and expectations for continued progress toward a normal inflationary environment. The emerging markets performed very well and outpaced their developed peers, led by the tech-heavy markets of South Korea and Taiwan.

Outlook

Resilient economic data and good earnings growth have resulted in high stock valuations, pushing indices to record highs. While headwinds from tariffs may impact growth near term, central banks' policy easing and potential cyclical recovery should continue to support risk appetite. Balancing the short and intermediate time horizons, the portfolio managers remain anchored in the belief that high-quality industry leaders will deliver consistently solid financial results and strong stock returns over time.

The investment fund option for The Manufacturers Life Insurance Company's variable life insurance product is managed by Manulife Investment Management and Trust Corporation.

The Fund mentioned in this document is specific to variable life insurance contracts and is not considered a mutual fund. Yields depend on interest and foreign exchange rate levels, both of which may fluctuate. Other factors that affect yield include changes in the credit standing of the issuers and changes in the value of the stocks and dividends received. Further, investments of the Fund may provide that their values be determined based on prices or yields of other securities, instruments or foreign currencies, and such provisions may result in negative fluctuations in the value of these investments and, in turn, the Fund's yields. Thus, the performance of the separate account(s) is not guaranteed and the value of the policy could be less than the capital invested. THE VARIABLE LIFE POLICYHOLDER SHALL BEAR ALL INVESTMENT RISKS. Past performance of the Fund is not necessarily indicative of future performance. Yields are not guaranteed.
