Market Review

The Philippine Stock Equity index (PSEi) rose 3% in January, closing at 6,646 points. The strong performance was driven by improvements in the January inflation print which decelerated to 2.8% from 3.9% in December year on year. As a result, the Philippines saw foreign investment inflows into the equity markets. January saw net foreign inflows of P4.2 billion versus net foreign outflows totaling P53.6 billion for 2023.

January inflation decelerated to 2.8% year on year from 3.9% the previous month on account of slower annual increase in household utilities including water, electricity, and fuel prices. Food inflation also eased to 3.3% year on year from 5.5% in December 2023. According to the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA), inflation in January was the lowest inflation rate since October 2020. Nevertheless, we continue to remain watchful on inflation as rice prices continue to increase by 22.6% year on year in January from December's 19.6%.

Subsequently, Philippine Gross Domestic Product growth (GDP) for full year 2023 was better than expected, increasing by 5.6% year on year. This was slightly better than consensus expectations of 5.4%. Philippine economic output continues to outpace most of our regional peers in Asia including China, Vietnam, and Malaysia.

Local bond yields rose in January despite local inflation easing to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas' (BSP) target range for two consecutive months. January inflation eased to 2.8% in January from 3.9% in December, largely due to base effects. Inflation risks remain, however, as rice prices continued to quicken even while slower price increases in food, transport and utilities were observed. Moreover, the volatile U.S. Treasury market has dampened local sentiment, as the market reassessed the timing of rate cuts from the U.S. Federal Reserve (Fed). The BSP's hawkish inclination implies that the BSP will likely wait for the Fed to lower the policy rate first before taking any action.

Outlook

We are positive on Philippine equities on expectations that the Philippines' macroeconomy may continue to improve further moving into 2024. We expect inflation to fall within the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas' (BSP) target range of 2%-4% in 2024. With price pressures further easing in 2024, this may allow the BSP to be more dovish and reduce policy rates to aid economic output. Lastly, despite the recent rally seen in January, PSEi valuations remains attractive at 12x forward price to earnings, still a discount compared to its historical average of around 15x.

Weakness in sentiment has extended as the Bureau of Treasury announced the sale of 5-year Retail Treasury Bond and as the market continued to pare down rate cut bets from the Fed this year. Looking ahead, while we maintain our view of lower yields in the second half of the year, we expect volatility to continue as the market evaluates the Fed's monetary stance. We expect the BSP to keep policy rate at 6.5% for the first half of the year, with a rate cut only possible after the Fed starts easing monetary policy.
