Market Review

The Philippine Stock Equity index (PSEi) was flat in June, ending at 6,430 level and just -0.09% lower compared to the prior month. The equity market started out June weak due to the concerns over potential interest rate hikes from the US. The weakness reversed as the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas extended its interest rate hike pause in its June meeting.

The macroeconomic picture continued to improve with June inflation slowing down to 5.4% y/y, lower compared to 6.1% in May. This decline provided the BSP with further room to pause interest rate hikes during the month. The Philippine peso also strengthened due to improving trade deficit figures as well as a weaker US Dollar. Meanwhile, President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. signed into law the Senate Bill 2020 and House Bill 6608, establishing the Maharlika Investment Fund (MIF). The Maharlika Fund will be initially funded by the National Government together with Landbank and Development Bank of the Philippines. The fund aims to invest in various asset classes such as equities, fixed income, as well as government infrastructure projects. On the other hand, Department of Finance Secretary Benjamin Diokno is planning to impose taxes on 'junk food' or food items that high contents of salt and beverages with sugar.

Overseas, investor sentiment also significantly improved after seeing US Inflation falling down to 3% in June, closer to the US Federal Reserve's target of 2%. Consensus expects the US Fed to raise policy rates by another 25bps in July. Meanwhile, El Nino has already officially started in June. So far, the government expects that this El Nino would be on the mild side of the spectrum. Hence, there is a likelihood that the impact of El Nino to inflation will be minimal.

Yields rose by 30-40bps in June, reversing over half of this year's rally. Despite the continuous moderation in local inflation to 5.4% in June from May's 6.1% print, the market decided to focus on rising yields in the U.S., as well as the Bureau of Treasury's decision to upsize its weekly FXTN auctions from P25b to P30b. Stronger-than-expected activity and jobs data in the U.S. fueled speculation of another Federal Reserve hike this month with possibility of rate cuts pushed back to next year. Nevertheless, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) maintained its stance that it has room to extend its pause in adjusting the policy rate.

Outlook

We have a positive view on Philippine Equities as the macroeconomic environment continues to improve. Philippine inflation appears to be under control which provides the BSP to potential cut interest rates in 4Q23. Note that the new BSP Governor, Eli Remolona, mentioned that they could consider cutting interest rates if inflation falls to 4%. In addition, the appreciation of the Philippine Peso due to declining trade deficit and weaker US Dollar supports a positive view on the local equity market. Meanwhile, the PSEi continues to trade at very attractive valuations, trading at only 12x forward price to earnings, a discount from historical average of 15x. One key challenge the market faces is the potential impact of El Nino on food supply and inflation.

While we acknowledge the presence of upside risks to inflation stemming from El Nino, we continue to expect local inflation to ease through the second half of the year and fall within the BSP's target range of 2-4% in 4Q. Furthermore, the recent sell-off has made local yields attractive with longer tenors approaching 7%. Indeed, volatility in U.S. interest rates has been spilling over to the local bond market, but the Philippines' improving macroeconomic fundamentals, remains supportive of a positive second half.
