Why Peso Wealth Optimizer Funds?

Investing through a target date approach simplifies asset allocation for an average investor. The asset mix changes over time, becoming more conservative as the investor's financial milestone draws closer.

The change in asset allocation over time is called the glide path which Manulife designed specifically for these funds.

The glide path's objectives include:

- To maximize wealth accumulation prior to target date
- To minimize risk as the target date approaches
- To make wealth last long enough to support any financial needs beyond the chosen target date

Market Review

The Philippine Stock Equity index (PSEi) was flat in the month of March, closing at 6,499 level. Note that from the recent peak in January, the market is already down by around 7% due to concerns over the macroeconomic environment such as persistently high inflation in January and February. As a result, there were concerns that the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas could further hike interest rates that would slow down the economy.

The improvement in the macroeconomic environment appears to be delayed given that January and February inflation remains persistently high at 8.7% and 8.6% from prior years respectively. In response, the BSP has hiked policy rates by a cumulative 75bps in February and March. On the positive side, we are seeing improvement in the inflation picture given that March inflation decelerated to 7.6%, opening up the possibility for a pause in hiking interest rates.

Corporates have started to report earnings of fourth quarter 2022 in February and March. The banking sector reported strong fourth quarter earnings driven by loan growth, net interest margin expansion and lower non performing loans. The property sector on the other hand reported strong earnings driven by the recovery in the shopping mall segment. Meanwhile the telecommunication sector reported weaker than expected results given the deceleration in broadband subscriber growth coupled with high operating costs. Overall, majority of corporates reported strong earnings and well above and within consensus expectations.

Investors seem to be more willing to add duration in March as demand shifted from short-dated bonds to those with intermediate and longer tenors. While recent U.S. bank trouble headlines have urged central banks to sound more cautious in further tightening monetary policy, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) still delivered a 25bps hike last month. BSP noted that future monetary actions will be highly dependent on the trend of inflation, which has been showing signs of easing. March inflation slowed to 7.6%, down from February's 8.6% print. Nevertheless, we are not yet out of the woods as core inflation continued to rise.

Outlook

We have a positive view in Philippine Equities given that the weakness of the market has likely priced in the macroeconomic headwinds such as high inflation and rising interest rates. Currently, PSEi is only trading at around 12x forward PER, a discount from historical average of around 15-16x. Meanwhile consumer demand appears to remain resilient as early indicated by fourth quarter 2022 earnings results from the banks, consumer and property sectors. Generally the corporate earnings for 4Q22 earnings reported in March have been upbeat, providing confidence that consumer spending will remain strong in the near future despite the high inflation.

We continue to expect lower yields later in the year as inflation moderates through 2H, especially with the market already pricing in a rate cut in the U.S. in 4Q, which would bode well for domestic bond markets. However, we will continue to be opportunistic in adding duration exposure due to heightened volatility amid the constantly changing market sentiment and macroeconomic landscape.
