Market Review

The Philippine Stock Equity index (PSEi) was up 2.3% for the month of April, rising to 6,625. The market rally during the month was driven by sustained strong corporate earnings in the first quarter of 2023. In addition, we continue to see a deceleration of inflation from the peak in January. The macroeconomic environment has improved as inflation continued to slow down. As of April, inflation stood at 6.6%, a decline from 7.6% the prior month and significantly below from 8.7% in January. The decline in inflation was due to deceleration in electricity, transport and food prices. Meanwhile, unemployment rate remains low at 4.7% as of March. Note that unemployment in prior month was at 4.8% while March last year was at 5.8%. In addition, March underemployment further declined to 11.2%, the lowest level since April 2005. The low unemployment and underemployment figures provide a strong case for sustained consumer spending in the country.

Outlook

We have positive view in Philippine Equities due to strong first quarter corporate earnings coupled with declining inflation pressure on consumers. Valuations are also quite attractive as the PSEi is trading at only around 12x forward consensus PER, a discount a discount from historical average of around 15-16x. Meanwhile, we are seeing indications that the interest rate hiking cycle has reached its peak. Recall that the steep rate hikes seen in 2022 was the main reason for the weakness in global equities market, Philippines included.
